Rhone M. Levin, M.Ed., RDN, CSO, LD, FAND, a Clinical Registered Dietitian/Nutritionist for over 30 years who has specialized in Oncology Nutrition for more than 2 decades, will be conducting an online educational session for oncology health care professionals on nutrition for patients during treatment, with a focus on patients of pancreatic and head and neck cancers.

For over 30 years, Rhone has cared for thousands of people undergoing cancer treatment, providing individualized counseling to meet nutritional goals and to help manage nutrition-related side effects. Rhone is a Fellow in the Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics and is a Board Certified Specialist in Oncology Nutrition. She is an often-requested speaker in oncology nutrition and is considered by her colleagues as one of the country's experts in caring for oncology patients with nutrition related symptoms during and following treatment for cancer. Rhone has made key contributions to the profession including co-authoring books, a leadership role in the development of the Board Certification Examination for Oncology Dietitians, and served on the Evidence Analysis Library to develop the Guidelines for Oncology Nutrition.
